

WEEK 3 OVERVIEW

An aerial photograph of a residential neighborhood that has been severely flooded. The water is murky and covers almost all the ground between the houses and trees. The houses have various roof colors, including brown, grey, and red. Some trees are still visible above the water level. A central road runs vertically through the middle of the image, and a horizontal road crosses it. In the top right corner, there is a green area that looks like a golf course or a park, which is also partially flooded.
