

WEEK 7 OVERVIEW

An aerial photograph showing a residential neighborhood completely inundated with floodwater. The water is a murky, brownish-grey color, reaching up to the roofs of many houses. The houses have various roof colors, including grey, brown, and red. There are many green trees scattered throughout the neighborhood, some of which are partially submerged. A central road runs vertically through the middle of the image, with a few cars visible in the water. To the right, there is a green field, possibly a golf course, which is also partially flooded. The overall scene depicts a severe flooding event.
